Explore a private wheelchair-accessible tour to Memphis, Saqqara, and the Dahshur archaeological site. Begin at Memphis, established by King Narmer, who unified Egypt's kingdoms 5000 years ago, marking the start of Egypt's history in the 1st dynasty. This city served as the capital during the Old Kingdom era. Continue to Saqqara, where you'll encounter the Step Pyramid of King Djoser, the oldest stone building in history.

You'll delve into Egypt's history further by visiting the Meidum Pyramid, offering a journey back in time and rich exploration opportunities. Constructed during the 3rd dynasty by Imhotep, revered not only as an architect but also as a figure of religious significance in ancient Egyptian culture. Conclude your tour in Cairo by visiting the Red Pyramid and the Bent Pyramid of King Snefru at Dahshur.

Itinerary

Memphis, Saqqara, and Dahshur Wheelchair Accessible Tours

A representative from Cairo Top Tours will meet you anywhere in Cairo or Giza for a private wheelchair-accessible tour of Memphis, Saqqara, and Dahshur Pyramids. Begin your journey at the Step Pyramid in Saqqara, renowned as the largest and oldest stone structure worldwide, built during the 3rd dynasty for King Djoser, a significant ruler in Egypt's history.

Next, proceed to Memphis, founded by King Menes, the pioneer of Egypt's dynastic history by uniting Upper and Lower Egypt during the 1st dynasty. Memphis served as the capital during the Old Kingdom and a cultural hub for over 3000 years. Here, you'll encounter the statue of King Ramses II, a prominent figure in the New Kingdom, and the Alabaster Sphinx of Memphis.

Continue to Dahshur, where although some pyramids have succumbed to time and the elements, it houses two of Egypt's earliest pyramids. Built under the reign of King Sneferu, founder of the 4th dynasty and father of King Cheops, these include the Bent Pyramid and the Red Pyramid. These structures showcase the architectural evolution leading to the construction of the Great Pyramids in Giza.

Conclude the tour with a gourmet lunch featuring the best of Egyptian cuisine on your return journey to your hotel. We hope you enjoyed our Cairo day trips and invite you to explore more wheelchair-accessible day tours across Egypt.
